Recycling computers helps the environment and our community.

Properly disposing of old computer equipment and accessories helps minimize bulk in landfills, reduces the negative impact of hazardous materials such as lead, cadmium, and mercury, and helps conserve resources and energy.

What happens to the equipment after it is donated?

- Donated electronic equipment is processed at a computer recycling facility.
- All asset tags are removed, and all data is removed from any hard drive or tape device per the U.S. Department of Defense hard disk wipe standards.
- Some equipment is donated to charity, and unusable equipment is recycled according to EPA guidelines for electronic recycling.
